Policy

Using Workday Payroll System to Pay Expense Reimbursements

101. The Workday Payroll System has functionality to process transactions for the reimbursement of employee expenses. Using the Workday Payroll System may be a cost-efficient way to reimburse employees as long as the payroll schedule provides acceptable timing for the reimbursement. When this functionality is used, expenses must be documented and their payment approved by the supervisor or other staff member charged with approving such payments before the payment is entered into Workday. The approval and documentation requirements are the same as would be required if the payments were processed through accounts payable.

Retention of Documentation

102. The agency payroll unit will retain the supporting documentation for six years after the date of payment.
