Discussion/interpretation

Aging and People with Disabilities (APD) has contracted with Docusign to help send, sign and management documents electronically for individuals applying for and receiving APD Medicaid long-term care services.

What is DocuSign?

DocuSign is a cloud-based electronic signature platform. It lets staff send documents for digital signatures and securely manage them without printing or mailing paper copies. It can help save time, reduce costs and improve compliance. DocuSign can be used on phones, tablets, laptops or desktop computers.

Implementation/transition instructions

APD has given DocuSign access to all districts for APD and Type B staff that handle case management related documents. DocuSign should be the first option offered to individuals for signing of forms available through the platform.

There are two roles available for local office staff in DocuSign:

- DS Sender
 - Sends documents (called envelopes) electronically to individuals for signing.
- District Administrator – Each district has a minimum of one dedicated District Administrators who:
 - Add or remove users
 - Reassign envelopes to other users
 - Manage shared access and shared envelopes.

If you haven't received an activation email from DocuSign and need access, contact your District Administrator. They can add you or resend the invitation if previously sent. If you don't know who your District Administrator is, please ask your supervisor.
